Free Horsemanship Demonstrations by Trainer Dennis Reis

Excalibur Hotel/Casino is proud to present free horsemanship demonstrations by California trainer, Dennis Reis, on June 13 – 15 in King Arthur's Arena at Noon. Reis has devoted his life to the practice of horsemanship and is dedicated to improving the horse-human relationship through the sharing of age-old horse handling methods and knowledge.

As the founder of The Reis Ranch School of Universal Horsemanship in Sonoma County, California, Reis educates students with his multi-faceted techniques for developing good horsemanship habits. The key principles of Reis' training program are freedom, awareness, and movement, and he teaches students to work with their horses rather than try to control them. "The goal of my workshop," said Reis, "is that you leave with a better understanding of how to communicate with your horse."

For over fifteen years, Reis has been teaching his methods of horsemanship, and he has learned several truths about horses. One is that a horse never lies. "The horse will be exactly as good as his human," said Reis. "When he has a choice, the horse will always make his own decision. And that decision will always be a reflection of you, the human."

Reis has also noted that horses are herd animals and that they instinctively look for a leader, so owners must find a balance between submissive and threatening behavior. Said Reis, "The horse will size you up and if you don't have the right qualities the horse will think 'I'm out of here.'"

Although many of Reis' techniques have been around for centuries, the movie "The Horse Whisperer," released in 1998, increased awareness of this common-sense approach to training. The results from Reis' methods are quite impressive and the lessons that he teaches about trust between human and horse are invaluable.

Reis' Universal Horsemanship demonstrations at Excalibur are free to the public on June 13 – 15. For information call 597-7600 or extension 7600.
